
The Weekly Idiom: To be caught with your pants down

Posted by miracle - 2007/03/05 00:20

This thread discusses the Content article: The Weekly Idiom: To be caught with your pants down

It's so fun and vivid!Also,it's very easy to understand!

=====

Re:The Weekly Idiom: To be caught with your pants down

Posted by Reemy - 2007/04/15 00:40

Thanx A lot Bro.

=====

Re:The Weekly Idiom: To be caught with your pants down

Posted by peiria - 2007/11/05 01:55

But i still couldnt unserstand the meaning of caught your pants down , anyone could explains it ? thz a lot

=====

Re:The Weekly Idiom: To be caught with your pants down

Posted by Danya - 2007/11/19 13:19

its like that he caught somthing bad on him i think

Post edited by: Danya, at: 2007/11/19 13:21

=====

Re:The Weekly Idiom: To be caught with your pants down

Posted by Troy Curtin - 2008/05/22 23:14

It means that he was "caught" in an unexpected situation. to be "caught with your pants" down means to be unprepared. It could be used in an ambush, for example: We caught the enemy with their pants down when we invaded their camp at night, or something like that. Does that make it any easier to understand?

=====